

Authenticity Disclaimer
(Used for guiding student work)
Henry Hexmoor
Carbondale, IL 62901
November 2014

My report is the result of original, creative collaboration with my mentors. Inspirations from other sources are found in my referenced work.

By signing I attest that I fully understand the following points:

1. Copying and pasting text with or without attributing the source is plagiarism, because it appears to be the writer's own words.
2. Giving the text a minor rewording and citing the source is still plagiarism.
3. Pasting text with quotation marks and citing the source is not plagiarism, but it is not writing. If most of the paper is made up of large quotations that is not acceptable.
4. A good research paper requires distilling the knowledge taken from a variety of sources down to the most relevant information, and presenting that information in one's own words.
5. There is a 1-1 correspondence between my citations and my references.
6. There is a 1-1 correspondence between labels of my equations and Figures and their use in my text.
7. Every Figure and equation is drawn by myself and adequately discussed in my text. If I was inspired by an outside source, I have correctly cited it and when required I have secured author's permission for my use.
8. All reported computer coded work is my own work. I have properly cited all algorithms and computer techniques that are related to this work.